Made in holland

Nestled among windmills and tulips is our very own factory, where we proudly produce 30% of our collection. We consciously choose to produce close to home in our own factory in North Holland. Here, we primarily manufacture wooden products, as the name suggests: WOODO. Most materials come from our own supplier, De Eekhoorn Dutch Furniture, who is proudly FSC®-certified. Ensuring that the wood is sourced from responsibly managed forests, with consideration for both the consumer and the environment. From the initial design to the final finish, every item is crafted in the Netherlands. Our products are available in over 50 countries through 1,500 retail locations worldwide. Orders are shipped from our state-of-the-art warehouse in Hoorn, North-Holland. By producing locally, we shorten supply lines, reduce transportation and react swiftly, creating efficiency while caring for the environment. With craftsmanship, local production and a good dose of pragmatism, we make furniture you can build on.

WOODO represents sturdy, honest design that integrates seamlessly into a wide range of interior styles. We take great pride in our factory, located in the country where our brand was founded, continues to grow and where our Experience Center is also based.

FSC®-Certified from start to finish

At WOODO, we work with FSC (Mix) certified suppliers, including our own factory (license code: FSC C002712). Behind every product lies a conscious decision, driven by a passion to make the right choices for you and the environment. In our factory, we produce only FSC®-certified products, ensuring they come from responsibly managed forests.

We are transparent

Sustainability begins with honesty. That's why we show where our products come from, how they are made and what impact they have on the environment. For an increasing number of furniture pieces in our collection, we create an environmental passport. It provides details about the materials used, their origin, the production location and the packaging method. This way, you know exactly what you're bringing into your home. Transparency isn't a trend for us, it's a promise. Because only through openness can we create a more sustainable future.

notes from nature

A recurring theme within WOOD, from nature-inspired design to our very name. Without nature, there would be no WOOD. We translate natural elements into our collections, where organic shapes, earthy tones and pure materials take center stage. Think solid wood, warm hues and soft silhouettes that bring a calm, grounded atmosphere indoors. Timeless and full of character.

Design talk

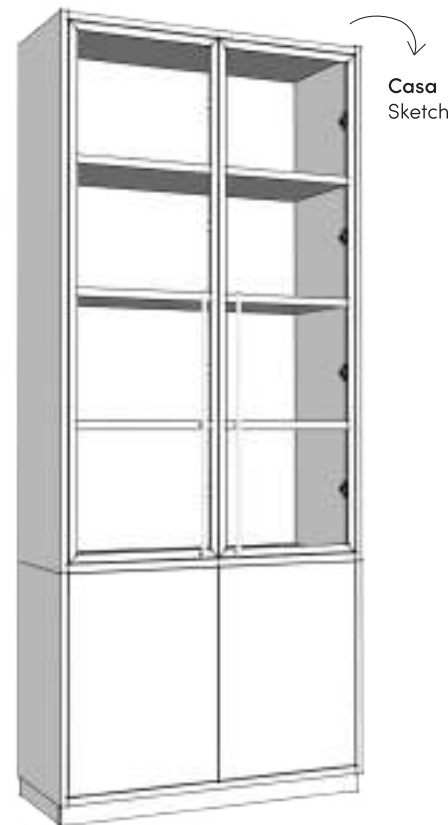

with designer Stijn Meester

"I try to make this beautiful, natural material the focal point of each design"

3. Which piece of furniture that you've designed is your personal favorite, and why does this design appeal to you?

A recent favorite of mine is the Casa showcabinet. I'm especially drawn to the way its colors, materials and proportions seem to fall into place so naturally. The pine structure and aluminum-framed glass doors may be very different materials but giving them the same Mud-colored finish creates a calm, cohesive look that I really enjoy. I also like how the smoked glass only hints at the oak décor inside, it adds a subtle sense of mystery without making the piece feel heavy. Its proportions make the cabinet very practical, providing plenty of storage space that I think fits well in many homes.

1. Where do you get your inspiration for new designs?

Actually, from everything. Often from architecture, nature and vintage furniture, but also from the internet.

2. Are there elements or styles you like to include in your designs? And how do you try to incorporate your own signature into them?

Yes, we produce everything in-house and using FSC®-certified solid wood. I try to make this beautiful, natural material the focal point of each design. Through subtle detailing, I aim to incorporate my signature into each piece. This could be a rounded edge, a groove or a milling detail. It varies per design, depending on the starting point.

4. Which design has grown into a true bestseller so far? And where do you think its popularity among customers comes from?

The New Gravure series. I believe this series is popular for several reasons. It is a timeless yet innovative design that fits into many different interior styles, making it appealing to a broad target audience. In addition, this series offers great value for money, which makes it even more attractive.

5. How much influence does customer or user feedback have on your designs?

I am always open to valuable feedback from customers, their experience is what truly matters and helps us improve our designs. It is therefore not uncommon for us to make optimizations to a design based on the feedback we receive.

6. Which design has challenged you the most, technically and/or creatively?

The Basu series has been a very nice creative and technical challenge. Creatively, I wanted the half-round door frame to visually flow into the leg. To achieve this, we had to pay extra attention to the construction and adjustability. In the end, we found effective solutions without having to make any concessions to the design. This made the series a rewarding challenge on multiple levels.
